Where are they located?

Sheridan County is located in Northwest Kansas, two counties south of the Nebraska border (about 45 minutes) and three counties east of the Colorado border (about 1 hour 20 minutes). As of 2019, the county's population is estimated at 2,521.

Hoxie is the county seat, located in the heart of the county.

Selden is located northwest of Hoxie (22 minutes).

Studley is located east of Hoxie (16 minutes).

Seguin is located west of Hoxie (14 minutes).

Angelus is located southwest of Hoxie (36 minutes).

OUR COMMUNITIES

About Them

ANGELUS/SOLOMON TOWNSHIP ›› POP. 179

Angelus is a small farming community located in the very southwestern corner of the county. Its rich history has caught the eye of many, as German families from Nebraska settled in this town in 1881. The centerpiece of Angelus is its historic Catholic church, built in 1887 along with a parochial school that functioned until 1999. Now, even with only dirt roads and a stop sign intersection, the town is still busy with tractors driving through daily and Sunday morning church services. The annual Bingo night at the Knights of Columbus building is a popular event among the locals.

HOXIE ›› POP. 1,201

Hoxie is conveniently located at the crossroads of U.S. Hwy 24 and U.S. Hwy 23, about 20 minutes north of I-70, and is the seat of Sheridan County. It was named after a Missouri Pacific Railroad official who had plans to build tracks through the town, but that fell through. With its many annual events, such as the Sheridan County Fair and Carnival, Winterfest, the Rod Run, and more, the town thrives on staying local—the true definition of a "small town." Hoxie offers a variety of businesses, restaurants, and a successful and well-known school district. Clean neighborhoods and friendly faces are found throughout town wherever you go. Numerous parks and scenic areas also highlight the natural characteristics of small town Kansas.

SEGUIN/LOGAN TOWNSHIP ›› POP. 97

Seguin is located 9 miles east of Hoxie on Hwy 24, then south on KS-188 for 3 miles. Seguin is a quiet town that gets its most business from grain trucks. The town features a small Catholic church, a cemetery, a co-op and grain elevator, and a gas station. The story goes that there was a foreman named Quinn, and when questions came up about work or where to get a drink, the response was "see Quinn." Eventually, the settlement became known as "SeeQuinn," later changed to Seguin (source: fhsuguides.fhsu.edu/kansasheritage/sheridancounty).

OUR COMMUNITIES

About Them

SELDEN ››› POP. 219

Selden is located on U.S. Route 83 where the highway parallels the track of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, now Kyle Railroad, in the northwestern corner of the county. The town was named after Selden G. Hopkins, a member of the town company. Even though the town is relatively small, a number of businesses can be found within city limits such as a furniture store, library, lumber yard, fitness center, bank, two churches, grocery store, restaurant, an auto body shop and more. The elementary school for Golden Plains School District #316 (Rexford, KS) is found in Selden (Golden Plains High School is located in nearby Thomas County). The town's annual fireworks display celebrating the 4th of July is well-known in surrounding areas.

STUDLEY/VALLEY TOWNSHIP ››› POP. 109

Studley is located on the Sheridan/Graham county border on the eastern edge of the county. Studley's roots date back to an early English immigrant, Abraham Pratt, who built the historic Cottonwood Ranch and is credited as the founder of the town. With its English roots, the town was named after the Studley Royal Park in England. Studley's automotive body shop and grain elevator are the main staples in town. The Cottonwood Ranch, half a mile west of Studley, is a fascinating look back in time of a rural sheep ranch. It was listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1983 for its association with the settlement of western Kansas and its architecture. All are welcome to join a guided or self-guided tour of the ranch (contact Don Rowlison at 785-627-5866).
